This is the 12th week of school, and things are running like a well-oiled machine. Students have been keeping busy with their various activities. Volleyball played Bethel last weekend and wrestling came back from ACS where they had a tournament. Many of the boys are happy now that they have a coach and girl's basketball has had their organizational meetings. Seniors are busy with research papers and scholarships, and juniors are busy raising money for prom. German clubs has also been raising money, but it's for a trip to Germany. Our student government has is now back from the AASG meetings in Eilson. We did not face any of the issues that the other schools in our region face, because our fishing resource is strong. But this made us think of how long until our fishing starts to run out, like in Dillingham or Bethel. A few students that I have talked to believe that our school should somehow save some money for when the times start to get bad.

Recently, there was an anthrax scare in Bristol Bay, and the school was shut down for a day. I have talked with a lot of students about this, and they don't seem to be worried. But it did make some of the students' think about how vulnerable we are even though we are way out in the Aleutians.

Soon the lower elementary classes will be moving into their new school. I am just one of the many students who are wondering about what is going to happen with the empty space after remodeling.

The "Who wants to be a drug free Millionaire" game that concluded red ribbon week was a success. The drama class later then put on a show that was very entertaining. That seems to be one of the more popular classes. Well another 7 months left... it looks like we may just make it.
